Exposition Refuses Paris Aero Club's Request to Divide Airship Award.

SERIES OF BALLOON RACES.

Immense Gas Generating Plant and Aerodromes to Be Erected by Professor Carl Meyers.

A revival of interest in the airship races for the World's Fair is caused by the an nouncement that the management has de-clined the request of the Aero Club of Paris that the grand prize of $100,000 be divided into smaller premiums.

Santos-Dumont also stands revealed as the bitter opponent of the Aero Club, on the matter of division. He has won his the matter of division. He has won his pose of establishing extensive vineyards, point with the Exposition authorities and from which wines will be produced for use the grand prize remains intact.

In the way of concession to the Aero Club, the Exposition will make public, in a few days, the programme for a series of $1,000,000 will be sper balloon races, along the lines of those which of these vineyards were a popular feature of the Paris Exposi-

It has become known that it is the inten-tion of the university to import vines from France and use such of the land as is adapted to the work of establishing vine-yards. More than 20 expert vineyard work-ers and winemakers and their families will also be imported from France to grow the grapes. Prizes ranging from $250 to $50 will be awarded for the first arrival at given points. If there are ten entries in any race, first, second and third prizes will be awarded; if but five entries, two prizes, and with only grapes.

The clerics, who were expelled from France under the recent law, and who were provided for by the university here, will take charge of the work, according to the three entries, one award. These events are distinct from and must not be confounded with the immense sum set aside for the grand prize for dirigible airships, nor are they connected with the long-distance airship race to Washington, D. C. take charge of the work, according to the report.

The members of the order were the producers of the choicest wines, and are considered the most expert men in the world in the cultivation of vineyards and the making of wine. These men will have entire supervision of the work.

The authorities at the university are extremely reticent in regard to the reported project and declina to confirm or deny the rumors.

It has been decided that the Exposition will build an extensive plant on the grounds for the generation of both hydrogen and illuminating gases for the inflation of bal-loons, a repair shop and a balloon shed to cost $30,000.

Doctor Carl Meyers of Elmira, N. Y., an Aeronautic Committee, Mesers C. W. Knapp ably will be engaged by the Exposition to superintend the construction of the immense generating wats and remain in charge of the entire plant during the Fair.
TO MEET COMMITTEE.

He will be invited to meet the Special Aeronautic Committee, Mesers. C. W. Knapp and Nathan Frank, early in September, for a free discussion of the plans for the gen-erating plant and the construction of the sheds. Besides the generation of the gases, the Exposition intends to repair damaged the Exposition intends to repair damaged ballons and recover and return balloons after every ascension and race. An additional concession to the Aero Club of Paris is the offer to furnish the sheds and illuminating gas and recover the balloons free of charge to the participating aeronauts in the balloon races, which will cover the entire active period of the Fair.

Hydrogen gas will be charged for according to the amount used by the aeronauts. These obligations call for the erection of a modern scientific plant of large proportions, to be under the supervision of a skilled aeronautic engineer, probably Doctor Meyers.

Additional rules to given the contest be-tween balloons have been approved by the Special Aeronautic Committee. Telegrams received from Messrs. Knapp and Frank sanction the issuance of the regulations. The air craft in full flight will sweep over the Exposition toward a given goal. The first balloon arriving there will be ad-judged the winner. It is expected that a large number of foreign aeronauts will par-ticipate.

necessary for the demonstration of snything scientific.

In connection with the request of the Aero Club for the division of the capital airship prise was the suggestion that the shape of the course be changed from a figure L to a square. This has been refused by the Aeronautic Committee, because, it is claimed, the L course is the only one that insures a certain test of dirigibility.

In making the square course the ship would turn in the same direction every time she changed her course. A circuit of the L course causes the ship to be turned in every direction, with and against the wind and from right to left. The L course must be successfully sailed if any aerial navigator would win the $100,000 prize.

ner General Agular Arrives in New York En Route to St. Louis.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

New York, Aug. 20.-Colonel DeSous: Aguiar, Commissioner General from Brazil to the St. Louis Exposition, with a very large and healthy family of little Aguiars, arrived here to-day after a voyage of nine en days on the steamer Byron.

Colonel Agular is accompanied by Doctor J. B. DuMotta and Senor Cunha, secretaries. The party was met in Brooklyn by John H, McGibbons, Eastern representative of the World's Fair, and driven to the Hotel Savoy, where they will remain several daya. Colonel Aguiars is about 40 years old, tail and lithe, and speaks English fluently. He was Braxil's Commissioner to the Chicago Exposition, and is thoroughly familiar with the duties of his position.

Colonel Aguiar will make 8t Louis his home until the close of the World's Fair. He is accompanied by his wife and six children, two of whom are young ladies. The children are exceptionally beautiful and all speak English as well as Bpanish.

Doctor DuMotta also brought his family, consisting of wife and three children, and will make 8t. Louis his home until the Exposition is a thing of history.

"I left representatives at home at work preparing the Brazilian exhibit," said Colonel Aguiar this afternoon, "and expect it will be all shipped by the first of March next. That will be time enough to have it reach 8t. Louis and be installed in our building which we will erect.

"Excellent progress in gathering our exhibit has been made, and there is no danger that it will not be completed in time for the opening." es. The party was met in Brooklyn by

Brazil has appropriated $600,000 for its participation in the Exposition. At the Chicago World's Fair the big South American Republic erected one of the finest buildings within the grounda. Colonel Aguiar says he has no doubt that his Government will do equally well by St. Louis, if, indeed, she does not edipse her former effort.

Colonel Aguiar is the first representative of the South American countries to reach New York, although all of the Bouthern Republics have appointed Commissioners. He will sewe for St. Louis on Monday, going by way of Washington, where he will spend a day or two. Upon his arrival in St. Louis he will select a site for the Brazilian building.

Colonel Aguiar and his secretaries will personally superintend the construction of cilian building.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN LEAPS OFF EADS BRIDGE INTO RIVER

From a Name on Copies of German Pa pers Found on His Person, He Is Thought to Be Henry Andreas.

An unidentified man, supposed to be Henry Andreas of Fosterpond, Monroe County, Ill., leaped from the middle span of the Eads bridge into the Mississippi River yesterday noon. His body was recovered several hours later and was re-moved to Kurrus's morgue pending iden-tification. The inquest probably will be held this morning. The only thing which leads the authorities to believe that the man's name is Andreas lies in the fact that he had several copies of St. Louis German papers in his pockets, which were addressed to that name. He was about 65 years old, had a full gray beard and gray hair, and weighed about 150 pounds. He had on a dark suit of clothes, the trousers were striped and his shoes were of the galter variety. His shirt was white with black stripes and he had on a black string tie. The man was a passenger on an eastbound street car, which was well filled with passengers. As the car neared the middle span of the bridge, the man sprang from the car, ran to the bridge ralling and with one bound sprang over the railing into the river.

Women in the car screamed and several fainted. The car was stopped, but the man did not come to the surface. The suicide was reported to the police on both sides of the river.

About 4 o'clock some fishermen near the Pittsburg Dump on the East Side fished out the body of the man supposed to be Andreas and who was afterward identified as the man who leaped from the bridge. variety. His shirt was white with black William Ehn of Galesburg, Ill., State Deputy Factory Inspector, was in Belleville yesterday and investigated the factories there, which employ boys and girls, to see that they were obeying the new law with reference to the employment of child labor. The new law on child labor is general in scope and forbids the employment of children under the age of 14 years. Those be-tween 14 and 16 years of age must have certificates issued by authority of the School certificates issued by authority of the School Board.

Night work for children is absolutely prohibited, and it is provided that every child under is years of age who works for wages must be able to read and to write, or must be attending a night school.

Mr. Ehn delivered an address on the evils of child labor before the St. Clair County Teachers' Institute, and urged that instructors make the schoolroom as attractive as possible.

W. H. INGRAM FINED. Struck Conductor in Dispute Over Car

Fare. W. H. Ingram of St. Louis was fined 55 and costs by Justice of the Peace Wangelin at Belleville yesterday afternoon on a charge of assaulting James McMonnigle, an East St. Louis street-car conductor, ten days ago.

The alleged assault grew out of a demand by the conductor for bridge fare. Ingram insisted that he had paid his fare, and the conductor that he had not. A fight followed, in which Ingram was worsted.

McMonnigle was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Ingram, charging assault and battery. When the case was called for trial ingram was arrested on a counter warrant on the same charge.

The trial yesterday resulted in the production of testimony which went to show that the conductor was the injured party and that ingram struck the first blow. Ingram and his attorneys waived a jury, and Justice Wangelin assessed the fine. The alleged assault grew out of a demand
